

Geology

Minerals form in rocks over a long span in time. There is no guarantee that all grains, or even all parts of a single grain grew under the same temperature or pressure conditions.

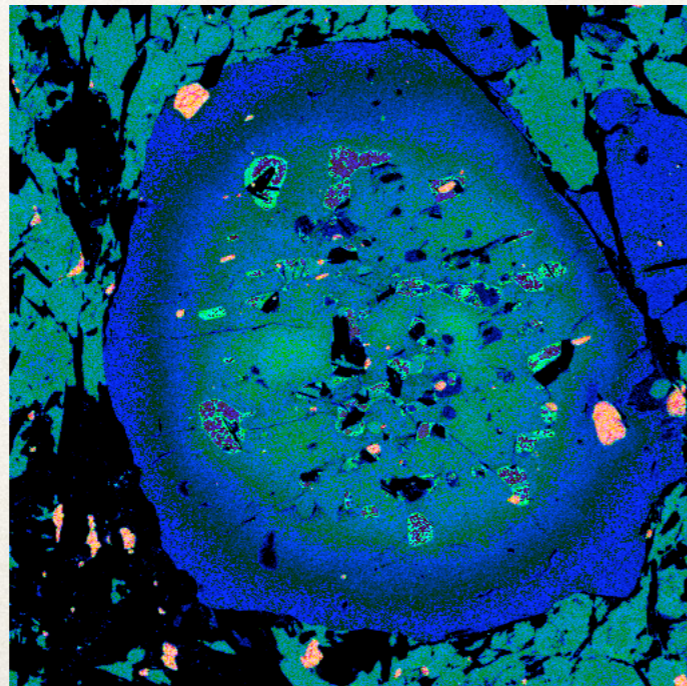

Image of CaK α in garnet from the Blue Ridge, North Carolina

