

Pauling's Third Rule

- ❖ The sharing of edges and particularly of faces by two anion polyhedra decreases the stability of an ionic crystal structure.