

Schematic diagram of a two-stage Kawai-type multi-anvil apparatus. The eight inner cubes are anvils that compress an octahedron-shaped sample assembly. The transducer produces an ultrasonic signal that is transmitted to the sample and detects the return signal.